

The Greatest Gift You Can Give Your Animals

Kim Shotola

In an ideal world, the greatest gifts you could give to your animals would be a forever home filled with love and the ability to understand each other on a heart and soul level.

Most pet-parents adopt their animals. But did you know that many of those animals don't realize that they have a forever home? Even if they've been with you for years, it's possible they don't know that you intend to keep them. If your animal acts anxious, apprehensive, depressed, stressed, or has an upset tummy, they may be living in fear that each day will be their last with you. Look deeply into your animal's eyes and tell them verbally, "You have a forever home with me. Wherever I live, you will be with me. I'm your forever person."

So, what's this heart and soul comprehension all about? First, know that if your animal doesn't have auditory issues, they do hear you when you speak out loud to them. They want you to talk to them daily. Tell them when you leave your home and when you'll return. Share how your day went. Talk about plans you have. To help avoid behavioral issues, tell your animal what you want them to do, not what you don't want them to do. Picture your desires clearly in your mind. Tell them what positive reward they'll receive for good behavior, and be sure to follow through.

If you want a deeper connection with your animals, then animal communication is the way to truly understand each other. And, it's a way to each animals with hearing problems. Animals have the ability to speak with us, and we have the innate ability to communicate with them. Talking to animals means connecting heart to heart, mind to mind, and receiving information from them in various forms, such as images, thoughts, words, emotions, and sensations. Everyone is intuitive. We are all "gifted." So, this means that you're capable of animal communication!

It's just a matter of waking up this ability. You can take the first steps by reading educational materials. I have written many animal-communication articles for this magazine, such as:

- THE HEART AND SOUL OF ANIMAL COMMUNICATION—Discusses what animal communication is, the many benefits, neat stories, and how it is learned.
- ANIMALS HAVE MESSAGES FOR YOU!—Talks about how animals are in your life for a reason and the possible lessons they may be trying to teach you.
- ARE YOU READY TO TALK WITH ANIMALS?—Provides steps for developing a stronger connection with your animals and learning how to "hear" them.
